

Meet Callie.

Callie is a sixth grader who started coming to the Funhouse when she was in first grade.

“I made my first friend at the Funhouse.”

That was Callie’s response when asked about her best Funhouse memory.

Callie says that the staff at the Funhouse taught her how to talk about her feelings, which has helped her continue to make new friends over the years.

The Funhouse is not just a place for kids to go while their parents work. It's their community, where first friends are made, and where children evolve into leaders.

Today, Callie is a Junior Staff member at the Funhouse and a role model for the younger kids. Callie hopes the Funhouse will be around for a long time because she wants her little sister, who's just three years old, to experience everything it has been for her.

Check out this School's Out Washington article that highlights the Funhouse's afterschool program: Bringing Quality to Rural Communities - The Funhouse Commons.